Say What Shall We Dance?

Say what shall we dance?
Shall we bound along the moonlight plain,
To music of Italy, Greece, or Spain?
Say, what shall we dance?
Shall we, like those who rove
Through bright Grenada's grove,
To the light Bolero's measures move?
Or choose the Guarracha's languishing lay,
And thus to its sound die away?

Strike the gay chords.
Let us hear each strain from every shore
That music haunts, or young feet wander o'er,
Hark! 'tis the light march, to whose measured time,
The Polish lady, by her lover led,
Delights through gay salons with steps
untired to tread,

Or sweeter still, through moonlight walks,
Whose shadows serve to hide
The blush that's raised by him who talks
Of love the while by her side;
Then comes the smooth waltz to whose floating sound,
Like dreams we go gliding around.

Say, which shall we dance?
Which shall we dance?
